Introduction

The purpose of extension activities is to give students opportunities to use the target words and definitions during interesting, engaging, and contextualized activities. Do not use the extension activities to assess the students' knowledge. Here are two types of extension activities:

1. Drill and Practice: Designed for the students to practice the vocabulary words and definitions.
2. Conceptual: Designed to give students more opportunities to understand and use the target words in an activity related unit theme. During the conceptual extension activity, the teacher should expand on students' language and vocabulary in a natural, but purposeful way.

Preparation:

Because extension activities are so different from each other, we cannot provide the standard way of conducting these activities. Instead, you will find examples and more specific directions for extension activities within each unit of instructions.

Procedures:

You will find many examples and more specific directions for each activity within each unit of instruction. The changing times have brought about a reorientation of extension education. Extension activities concentrates on putting across in an understandable manner, new ideas and improved technologies of practical utility to the rural, tribal and urban privileged and underprivileged people. It enables us to use the newly acquired knowledge and skills to improve their general standard of living. It is the social science that attempts to adopt various strategies of change in the behavior patterns of people through technological and scientific innovations for the improvement of their standard of living. The idea behind the extension work is the coming together for the task of social upliftment. Extension makes good communities better and progressive. Extension contributes to national development programmers.

Participants typically develop leadership and teamwork skills and become more attuned to working amongst populations of varying ethnicity or socioeconomic status. The institution itself is likely to benefit from more satisfied students, often more motivated and more likely to stay in college, as well as from better relations with potential employers, neighboring communities, voters, state legislators, parents, and current and future alumni. Extension is learning-teaching methods connect meaningful community service to academic curriculum. Service-learning blends community service goals and formal and informal (standard/academic and experiential/non-standard) educational goals in a manner that benefits participants and recipients. Extension activities and learning is a set of techniques and tools that can strengthen community relationships and connections.
